

Climax Furnace

HAVE a furnace installed in your home that is all cast iron. It has no flues and will heat your home with less fuel than any other furnace on the market. It will burn the cheapest fuel you can buy.

Our work is done by Mr. Wm. Robb, who has had 30 years' experience in furnace work.

We guarantee our furnaces to give satisfaction and also our workmanship.

Estimates Gladly Furnished

SCHLATTER & HOWARDS
"The Store of Quality"

CORRESPONDENCE

SOUTH CHESTERFIELD
Miss Hazel Esterline and her grandmother, Mrs. D. Lamater, are spending the week at Alvordton. Dr. H. L. Oiler was seen on our streets Monday.

William Taylor spent Sunday at Carl Taylor's, near Advance. Walter Esterline and family entertained friends from Fayette and Alvordton Sunday.

Home Blair and family were Wauseon callers Saturday. L. Tuckerman, wife and daughter Phyllis called on C. G. Head Wednesday evening.

SOUTH PIKE
Lloyd Kuhn and family spent Sunday and Monday with Roy Kuhn's, near Stryker.

Carpenters are busy working on Lincoln Taylor's barn. David Pollock and wife of Toledo spent Sunday with Lincoln Taylor.

Clyde Bittkofer and wife Sundayed with Roscoe Koon. John Whitmore and wife spent Saturday with H. L. Whitmore.

George Taylor and wife spent Monday the guest of her sister, Mrs. Wilbur, near Metamora.

Arby Strayer and family were guests of George Bittkofer's.

Only a Few Can Go.
Those who do not have to consider expense are now going to health resorts to get rid of impurities in the system that cause rheumatism, backache, aching joints and painful muscles. If you cannot go, yet feel you need relief from pain and misery, get Foley Kidney Pills. They restore the kidneys to activity and make you feel well and strong.

NORTHWEST CLINTON
Sadie Kuntz spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kuntz.

Alie Hogeboom was a Toledo visitor one day last week.

Lawrence Robinson who has been in the West and also California for the past five years was calling on old friends and neighbors here last week.

Miss Rosa Kaiser is visiting her sister in Toledo.

James Robinson has moved his old barn back and has the foundation all completed for a new one.

Mrs. Frank Willey of Toledo, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hines.

A. J. Winkler and family spent week of Wauseon.

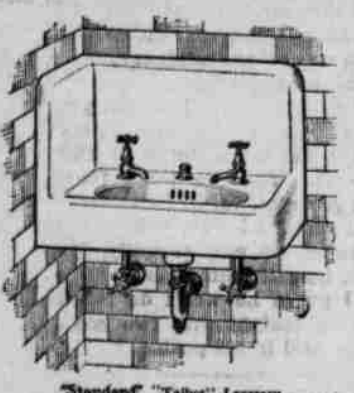

A Doctor's Prescription for Cough—An Effective Cough Treatment.
One-fourth of one teaspoonful of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken as needed, will soothe and check Coughs, Colds and the more dangerous Bronchial and Lung Afflictions. You can't afford to take the risk of serious illness, when so cheap and simple a remedy as Dr. King's New Discovery is obtainable. Go to your Druggist today, get a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, start the treatment at once. You will be gratified for the relief and cure obtained.

Public Stenographer
MISS FLORINE FILES
Room No. 4
Peoples Bank Building
Wauseon, Ohio 44-4

A CORNER LAVATORY like the one shown is especially desirable for small bathrooms. Though they are economical in the use of space, they are just as sanitary and easily cleaned as the larger designs.

Prices cheerfully given for installing this "Standard" Lavatory or for any other kind of plumbing work.

EARLE H. HILL
Wauseon, Ohio

BARNARD'S CORNERS

Decorated Day, Sunday, was a cool day so far as weather was concerned, Monday, being the Holiday, was observed by many as a day of sad commemoration.

"Local Option doesn't prevent drinking." The road was hardly wide enough for some last Sunday.

Wm. Barnard visited with his youngest daughter, Mrs. William Thomas and son, Zola Barnard, in North Baltimore, and Monday paid tribute to his dead wife, who is interred in the McComb cemetery.

Demas Leberman erected a large barn on his farm last Saturday.

Lyman Bixler visited with Wm. Orwick, Sunday.

Mrs. Clarence Johnson is very ill. Mrs. Johnson is better known as Emma March.

Jay Angel, who is working in the Wood county oil field was the over Sunday guest of his mother.

Ray Davis who is working near Swanton, was at home Sunday.

Mr. Altman and wife of Findlay, Ohio, and wife of Findlay, Ohio, were at home Sunday.

The heavy frosts of the past week have resulted in damage to early potatoes, beans, corn, clover and fruit, especially on the low ground.

Joseph Stinsonman was seriously hurt in a fall from a horse.

He is slowly improving. His condition was at one time such as to make hopes of his recovery very small, but he has rallied and is doing as well as can be expected.

Indigestion and Constipation.
"About five years ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets after suffering from indigestion and constipation for years without finding anything to relieve me. Chamberlain's Tablets helped me at once and by using them for several weeks I was cured of the complaint," writes Mrs. Mary E. McMullen, Phelps, N. Y. For sale by all dealers.

DOVER
Sunday callers at R. J. Shaffer's were Mrs. Fred Weber, Miss Bertha Canfield, Miss Lizzie Trudel, Mr. Wolcott Delta, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davis and family of Wauseon.

Miss Josephine, Mrs. Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. James Verity and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Neely of Toledo, Mr. and Mrs. Boyers of Toledo, Mr. and Mrs. Florence Hine, Mr. and Mrs. William and Miss Helen Lind, Mr. John Shaffer and Miss La Vada Clark.

A surprise party was given in honor of Mr. Robert Borton Saturday evening, whose thirteenth birthday anniversary occurred Sunday, May 30.

Those present were Mr. Frank and Mrs. Borton, Mr. Simon Bailey, wife and daughter Opal, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crot, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kline and son Lee.

Mr. Wesley Borton and family and Miss Elsiea spent Sunday at Homer Blair's.

Miss Lenora Innes has returned home after a few days' stay at her aunt's, near Delta.

You had ought to see the smile which Mr. Levi Borton has been wearing for the last few days.

A son, George Edward, came to live with them last Thursday.

Mr. Jerome Bailey, wife and daughter Ardita spent Sunday with Henry Layman's, near Delta.

Sunday visitors at Levi Borton's were Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell.

Miss Florence Hine spent Saturday night with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hine.

Sunday visitors at Mrs. Sarah Van Ness' were Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Taylor, Mrs. Abby and Bruce, and daughters Florence and Nora.

Mr. Howard Kline of Wauseon, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. George Radol of Wauseon.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth Hine called on Mr. Carl Ragan Sunday evening.

Mrs. John Kline and daughters, Ruth and Helen, spent Monday and Tuesday with Mrs. Sarah Van Ness.

Witchery of a Barn.
There is a spirit of poetry about a barn and, unconsciously, men are touched by it. In youth it kindles our imagination, and fosters our susceptibility to the simple beauty of common things; daybreak—with the fresh sweetening of the wet grass about us as we go up the path toward the great barn still darkly silhouetted against the brightening sky, with the weathercock, high up against the topmost band of pink, pointing to clear. With the opening of the barn door the day's work begins. The horse whinnies at the sound, for his corn; the cattle move expectantly in their stanchion rows; the chickens cackle and cluck in the hayloft, as they drop futtering to the floor. Day has begun—day, with all its activities, with all its commonplaceness, with all its mysteries. Something of all this we feel, unknowingly, as we pull back the heavy bolt and throw open the barn door—Suburban Life.

Life of a Flea.
Socrates asked how far a flea could jump, but the length of his life is more important than the length of his jump. It is important because fleas are bearers and disseminators of various parasites, thus the rat flea of India is the bearer of the plague microbe. The British rat flea usually passes through its development cycle in two or three weeks; in ten days in warm, damp weather. Gautier and Raynaud kept one alive on human blood for 90 days. Another lived for 41 days in a chamber without feeding. Dr. Willam Nicoll finds that a rat flea can live on an average about a week apart from its host. The period of survival is longer at low temperature and it is the light; it is shortened by excess of dryness or by excess of moisture. Very important, however, is the discovery that the larvae and pupae may survive in infected material (grain sawdust, brushings and so on) for as long as a year.

Substitute for Lemons.
Some years ago my uncle, a physician in a small town, received a call to the country and asked me to accompany him, writes a correspondent. The patient was the wife of a very miserly man who lived in the backwoods. My uncle advised the husband to give his wife good, wholesome food and to purchase some lemons for her. The husband said: "Won't pickles do just as well? I have pickles as good as any lemons!"

BEFORE LAYING IN COAL
consult us, for we have on hand a good supply of splendid coal for furnace or kitchen use, and just now we are selling it at very low prices.

OUR COAL
is of excellent quality. We can furnish you with all sizes, as well as deliver it whenever you say.

D. S. KNIGHT

HENRY HAD COURAGE

By JANE PHAR.

"He said," Carlie admitted defiantly, after being pressed to helplessness, "that I'd better have it out. Said it wasn't possible to save it."

"That's too bad," sympathized Mrs. Carlie. "I'd have it done right away—today."

"Yes," said Carlie, casually. "No use putting it off."

When he returned home that evening Mrs. Carlie met him tenderly. "Did it hurt you much?" she inquired.

"Huh!" asked Carlie, blankly.

"Why, your tooth—what did it extract, didn't you?"

"Oh," murmured Carlie, as though recalled from a long distance. "No—I didn't. I have been too busy, Emily, to think of myself. I didn't have any time. I'll go tomorrow."

"Well!" inquired Mrs. Carlie, the following evening. "How do you feel, Henry? Was it painful?"

Carlie paused in the act of removing his overcoat and gazed at her reproachfully. "I wish, Emily," he said, "that you would recollect that I am a business man and not free to follow my own whims and inclinations. You may be able to consult your own pleasure, but you needn't think I can drop a $20,000 deal for the sake of a mere tooth!"

"But the dentist said for you to have it out!" persisted his wife inexorably.

"It wouldn't take half an hour! You're just trying to put it off, Henry! Carlie, and I must say that I am surprised at you!"

"No such thing!" cried Mr. Carlie, with immense indignation. "A baby wouldn't mind having a tooth out now—adays with their modern methods! If you think I am afraid of a trifling unpleasantness—pooh! I'm as hungry as a bear!"

"Henry," said Mrs. Carlie, the following morning as he left for the city.

"They were telling him to wake up."

She spoke very distinctly. "Remember, Henry, to go today and have that tooth out!"

That afternoon Carlie phoned her to stay down town to dinner with a client and that Mrs. Carlie was not to sit up for him. She had got as far as asking, "Did you have—" when the receiver at his end hung up with a click.

At the breakfast table the next morning he got in ahead of her. "No, don't start telling me about that tooth!" he said, with infinite and weighty sarcasm. "I am quite aware, my dear, that I possess a molar which has to be extracted, according to the dentist, in whom, by the way, I haven't any too much faith! I intend, however, to abide by his decision—I can't afford not to when a man is such a pirate in his charges as Jenkins—and I shall have it done today."

"You are a coward!" stated Mrs. Carlie, distinctly and unpleasantly. "I never thought my husband would be a—"

The front door banged heavily after Carlie. Twice that morning Mrs. Carlie got him on the telephone to make inquiries. The second time he was so violent that she did not wait for him to finish, but hung up the receiver. She gathered that he was engaged in settling the fate of LaSalle street, Wall street and possibly Europe, and if she thought—

Immediately before noon Carlie's office door opened abruptly and looking up he beheld on the threshold his wife. Carlie was alone, feet on his desk, cigar in mouth, magazine in hand, an aura of immense leisure surrounding him. He turned pale.

"Henry," said Mrs. Carlie, "at great inconvenience to myself I have come down here to accompany you to the tooth extracting bee. If you can leave Wall street and your numerous clients for a short time, I should like you to come with me—at once!"

Carlie got on his feet hurriedly and before he knew it he was in the fatal chair.

They were telling him to wake up before he was sure that anything was happening to him. Everybody was quite cheerful and casual and acted as though nothing had occurred. In the outer office he met his wife, a little anxious and pale.

"Well?" she asked.

Carlie smiled at her in a superior way and shrugged into his overcoat.

"Why, Emily?" he said, "you really act as though you were nervous!"

Chicago Daily News.

OF GREAT FOOD VALUE

GELATIN IS WORTHY OF MUCH CONSIDERATION.

Fundamental Food for the Child, and Essential for the Conconvalescent. Its Use in Jelly Meat Salad and Soup Meats.

(By LIDA AMES WILLIS.)

As a product of actual food value, pure, unadulterated gelatin, is not given the consideration it deserves.

Few understand that it is really a fundamental food for the young, growing human being; as well as a realer in the case of the convalescent.

The very nature of the substance, in its pure state as young animal gelatin, should make clear to us its substantial worth as an easily assimilated building material and necessary form of sustenance.

Jellied Meat Salad—Make a scant pint of unsweetened lemon gelatin jelly. In making it steep a sprig of two of fresh bruised mint in boiling water for a few minutes before pouring water over the gelatin. When the jelly is cold enough to begin to thicken, add a pint or more of cold boiled or roast mutton, free from fat and cut in dice. Decorate a wet mold with sliced carrots and pickles or olives, cut and shaped according to fancy, and turn in the meat mixture and set in the ice chest to harden. Serve as a salad with a good mayonnaise and fresh lettuce or cress.

Jellied Soup Meat, Iced—Make the jelly carefully in following manner: Cut into small pieces a pound of soup meat and add just enough water to cover. Let stand in cold place until water is red, then place where it will simmer slowly until all the nutriment is out of the meat. Two hours before removing from the stove add salt to taste and a teaspoonful of savory soup herbs. Keep the top clear from scum. When done strain carefully and set at once in a cold place, as it will not form into a firm jelly if allowed to stand in a warm kitchen. The more quickly the heat is thrown out and the liquor chilled the finer your jelly. When chilled remove all the fat from surface, break up into moderate pieces and pile up in bouillon cups and serve.

Cold—These are many and delicious and have the added advantages of being nourishing, wholesome and, as a rule, greatly favored by the young people. Space will not permit giving any special recipe of this group in present issue, but the recipes gathered at random from reliable sources will show you how valuable gelatin is to the culinary expert, and common sense should prove its value to the amateur cook.

Jellied Cheese—Dissolve two table spoons of sugar in a pint of water, add a pint of boiling water, when cold stirring into three ounces of grated or crumbled yellow cheese, three ounces of cottage or white cream cheese, and one or two chopped pimientos. Pour into little molds sprinkled with goat cheese and set on ice to harden. Serve on lettuce with a dressing of sharp mayonnaise.

Pineapple Economy.
Most people claim there is so much waste to pineapples, but here is a method by which every bit of the fruit is utilized. Pare and cut the fruit either sliced for the table or put away in jars for the winter. Take the parings and cores and to four pineapples add four cups cold water, boil fifteen minutes, then let stand several hours, add half pound butter, one teaspoon sugar, salt and cayenne and black pepper to taste. Cook until it beads.

Scotch Stew.
Run through meat grinder three pounds tender lean beef. Place in deep vessel with three quarts cold water. Boil three hours, adding hot water as needed. Strain through cloth and add half pound butter, one teaspoon sugar, salt and cayenne and black pepper to taste. Cook until it beads.

To Test Bread Dough.
To test light bread dough and make sure as to whether it has risen sufficiently for baking, press the finger in the dough. If the hole remains the dough is in proper condition; if the hole closes the dough is indurated, this shows that it is in a condition to continue rising.

Cleaning Oriental Rugs.
Oriental rugs may be cleaned very well with the aid of a vacuum cleaner, as does not pull out the nap, as such is apt to do. The cleaner should, however, be rolled up and down the rug with the nap rather than across.

Seed in Cans.
Empty baking powder cans are excellent for keeping vegetables and such as sweet corn, beans, etc., from being destroyed by mice or bugs.

England's Oldest Port.
Falmouth is probably the oldest port in England. It was used by the Phoenicians in about twenty-five hundred years ago.

HENRY HAD COURAGE

By JANE PHAR.

"He said," Carlie admitted defiantly, after being pressed to helplessness, "that I'd better have it out. Said it wasn't possible to save it."

"That's too bad," sympathized Mrs. Carlie. "I'd have it done right away—today."

"Yes," said Carlie, casually. "No use putting it off."

When he returned home that evening Mrs. Carlie met him tenderly. "Did it hurt you much?" she inquired.

"Huh!" asked Carlie, blankly.

"Why, your tooth—what did it extract, didn't you?"

"Oh," murmured Carlie, as though recalled from a long distance. "No—I didn't. I have been too busy, Emily, to think of myself. I didn't have any time. I'll go tomorrow."

"Well!" inquired Mrs. Carlie, the following evening. "How do you feel, Henry? Was it painful?"

Carlie paused in the act of removing his overcoat and gazed at her reproachfully. "I wish, Emily," he said, "that you would recollect that I am a business man and not free to follow my own whims and inclinations. You may be able to consult your own pleasure, but you needn't think I can drop a $20,000 deal for the sake of a mere tooth!"

"But the dentist said for you to have it out!" persisted his wife inexorably.

"It wouldn't take half an hour! You're just trying to put it off, Henry! Carlie, and I must say that I am surprised at you!"

"No such thing!" cried Mr. Carlie, with immense indignation. "A baby wouldn't mind having a tooth out now—adays with their modern methods! If you think I am afraid of a trifling unpleasantness—pooh! I'm as hungry as a bear!"

"Henry," said Mrs. Carlie, the following morning as he left for the city.

"They were telling him to wake up."

She spoke very distinctly. "Remember, Henry, to go today and have that tooth out!"

That afternoon Carlie phoned her to stay down town to dinner with a client and that Mrs. Carlie was not to sit up for him. She had got as far as asking, "Did you have—" when the receiver at his end hung up with a click.

At the breakfast table the next morning he got in ahead of her. "No, don't start telling me about that tooth!" he said, with infinite and weighty sarcasm. "I am quite aware, my dear, that I possess a molar which has to be extracted, according to the dentist, in whom, by the way, I haven't any too much faith! I intend, however, to abide by his decision—I can't afford not to when a man is such a pirate in his charges as Jenkins—and I shall have it done today."

"You are a coward!" stated Mrs. Carlie, distinctly and unpleasantly. "I never thought my husband would be a—"

The front door banged heavily after Carlie. Twice that morning Mrs. Carlie got him on the telephone to make inquiries. The second time he was so violent that she did not wait for him to finish, but hung up the receiver. She gathered that he was engaged in settling the fate of LaSalle street, Wall street and possibly Europe, and if she thought—

Immediately before noon Carlie's office door opened abruptly and looking up he beheld on the threshold his wife. Carlie was alone, feet on his desk, cigar in mouth, magazine in hand, an aura of immense leisure surrounding him. He turned pale.

"Henry," said Mrs. Carlie, "at great inconvenience to myself I have come down here to accompany you to the tooth extracting bee. If you can leave Wall street and your numerous clients for a short time, I should like you to come with me—at once!"

Carlie got on his feet hurriedly and before he knew it he was in the fatal chair.

They were telling him to wake up before he was sure that anything was happening to him. Everybody was quite cheerful and casual and acted as though nothing had occurred. In the outer office he met his wife, a little anxious and pale.

"Well?" she asked.

Carlie smiled at her in a superior way and shrugged into his overcoat.

"Why, Emily?" he said, "you really act as though you were nervous!"

Chicago Daily News.

IT WAS A SURPRISE

By ALLIE CLAYTON.

The daughter of the household, aged eleven, looked up from her book as the man caller came into the library.

"How do you do, Mr. Dearmore," she said, getting up politely. "You might as well take a comfortable chair because sister won't be down for ages. She is always slow about getting dressed and I suppose now she'll be slower than ever because she won't care if she does keep you waiting."

"Well, why shouldn't she care, I'd like to know?" inquired the caller with an assumption of surprise designed to be comic.

The young person hitched a little closer to him in her eagerness. "I just found out!" she told him, "tonight, I guess they weren't going to tell me, but sister was so interested in brushing out her hair that she didn't notice me and mother said: 'You might have done better if you'd more ambition, but thank heaven, you're engaged at last!'" And sister said yes, it was time and she'd have to make the best of it. Why, she's engaged! Don't you understand?"

"You surprise me," said the caller, who, however, was not surprised.

The young person nodded her head. "It's awfully exciting to have an engaged person in the family. We never had one before. I held my hand over my mouth to keep from asking right out who it was, but I knew if I spoke they'd make me go away—and then all they said was that where the trooper was coming from if it didn't make a killing goodness only knew what a trooper!"

"A sort of feminine delirium, I believe," the young man told her. "Wouldn't you like to read out loud to me from your book?"

"Not when I can talk," the young person assured him, promptly. "I'd think it was Bob Samson, only he hasn't been here for ages. He's riding around a ranch out West now and he always brought me chocolates and petted the dog and waited hours and hours for sister. Mother told her one day for goodness' sake when she got her hands on that huge old Samson house to burn it down and put up another one with a French gray drawing room, and other things, but I guess Bob slipped a cog somehow."

"Er—what?"

"Well, Aunt Clara said to mother that a cog in the wheels must have slipped somehow and how did he ever get away and wasn't it a pity! So I suppose Bob did it. I always liked his chocolates—he brought me just as good ones as he brought sister. Sometimes they try to pass off cheap candy on me, but I know! Then I feed it to the dog."

"I'm glad it wasn't that Slickens man. He always called me 'little one' and patted my head and he had bronchitis and always coughed before he spoke, and sister said she didn't care if he was rich, but she couldn't endure a man who wore brown ties and ate grapefruit with a fork and anyhow he gave her the shivers. That was the time mother scolded so and sister went to Aunt Clara's for a month."

"I'm surprised at her getting engaged, because she'll have to have a house and meals then and she says picking out things to eat is simply awful and she wouldn't wear her life away keeping down the grocery bills for any man and he might as well make up his mind to it. Anyhow, sister never loses her head, because mother says so, and she'll make him toe the mark. Mother says that with her sweet smile sister could make a man believe white was black, but that seems foolish. Wouldn't you know black if you saw it?"

"I used to think I was able to distinguish colors," admitted the caller.

"But you're different," said the young person. "It isn't as though you were one of sister's trallers—that's what she calls 'em. It doesn't make any difference to you. Only I thought if I told you about it you'd understand why she didn't hurry to get down here, now she's interested in one particular man."

"Well," said the caller. "I'll tell you a secret. I'm the particular man."

"The young person's eyes bulged. 'Honest?' she squealed. "Why, I was never so surprised in my life! And you never petted the dog once! My, but you're quiet!"

A Muscular Christian.
Archdeacon Hudson Stuck, who climbed Mount McKinley, or, as he insists it should be termed, the McKinley peak of Mount Denali, came from England, and after a residence in Texas spent eight or nine years in Alaska as archdeacon of the Yukon, helping Bishop Rowe in his remarkable missionary labors. He has traveled thousands of miles in Alaska on foot or by dog-sled, usually with only an Indian boy as a companion, threading dangerous passes in the depth of the winter of the Arctic circle, and at times while on his rounds camping at night on icy slopes with the thermometer at 70 degrees below zero. He has been not merely spiritual counselor and teacher, but also friend, helper and physician to the miners and Indian hunters—Woman's Home Companion.

Something Accomplished.
"Then your arctic expedition was a fizzle?"

"Not absolutely. I didn't get enough material for a two-hour lecture, it is true, but I think I can break into vaudeville with a 20-minute talk."

CHICHESTER PILLS

DIAMOND BRAND

Beware of Counterfeits.